SPECIAL REPORT:

HOW TO ADD ROMANCE TO YOUR RELATIONSHIP

This Special Report is aimed to guide you to increase the Romance in your Relationship. In this Report, you will find ideas that are designed with your beloved partner in mind.

In this report, we focus on gift giving. Gift giving is a multi-faceted experience. It includes thoughtfulness, loving consideration, imagination, creativity, motivation, and the desire to delight your loved one.

Gift giving, certainly, provides a cherished token to the recipient. In this Special Report, we focus on you selecting a gift that is CERTAIN to be a winner with your partner.

However, there is a hidden present in gift-giving as well – giving a gift gives to the giver, too! When you give a gift, you receive back from the act of offering the present to another.

For example, you might feel excitement at the prospect of your loved one's pleasure at the gift s/he is about to receive. So, the gift you would receive as the giver is excitement! You might feel good about yourself for offering this token of your affection. So, the gift you would receive as the giver is positive, warm feelings of cherishing yourself. These gifts remain yours, whether or not the recipient appreciates what you have given.

When you give a gift, it carries some of your energy with it –

- your thoughts that you invested to think of, and make/get, the gift;
- your emotions that were behind you even wanting to provide a gift;
- your physical being, which went out and purchased the gift or which created the gift from supplies you had on hand;
- your spirit, the life-giving, energy part of your being that is shared with your loved one through the gift

You give part of you!

Giving part of yourself to your loved one is at the very heart of romance, intimacy and passion. It allows your partner to have a tangible reminder of just how great is your love for him/her! Such reminders serve to add strength and depth to your relationship.

Romantic Gifts for Coffee Lovers

Many people like coffee but some love it to distraction. These coffee connoisseurs know the brands that they like or the store that makes the best coffee. If your love is one of these, s/he will appreciate your thoughtfulness in getting a gift that SO fits!

When you are looking for gifts for your coffee lover, here are a few ideas:

1. Coffee Mugs

There's nothing better than a steaming cup of hot coffee in your favorite mug. Give your loved one several mugs to choose from so that no matter which mug is used, it is a good one that will bring a smile with each sip. If your partner likes a certain brand, order coffee mugs with the company's logo for the coffee lover in your life.

2. Membership to a Coffee Club

Some coffee lovers really enjoy trying new flavors. One of the best ways to do so is through a membership in a coffee club. Boca Java is a coffee membership club that offers new flavors each season. They provide fresh ground coffee or whole bean depending on the subscriber's preferred tastes. They ship every four, seven, or twelve weeks. If your coffee lover doesn't like the membership s/he can cancel at any time.

3. Coffee Machine

Nothing says love to a coffee guru like a new coffee machine. Get him or her the latest machine that does everything. There are brew stations that make cup by cup of coffee or a certain number of cups. You can purchase a machine that grinds the beans before it brews or, give your loved one an espresso/cappuccino maker to enjoy drinks in the casual, relaxing environment of home.

4. Coffee Gift Basket

Gift baskets are like Christmas every day. They can contain several gifts in one package. You can purchase a gift basket online, in a coffee store, or come up with one of your own. If your partner likes a variety of coffee, don't forget to add several bags of his/her favorite flavors. Add a cute coffee mug, some flavored spoons and creamers, etc. Including shirts, pens, and other items that cater to your loved one's coffee cravings will help him/her to remember your gift beyond just the coffee itself.

5. Flavored Spoons and Such

Sweet treats are a complement to just about any cup of coffee. Flavored spoons that are covered in chocolate and other flavors enhance the coffee, not to mention they are fun too. Instead of powdered creamer, offer the coffee lover tasty flavors like caramel crème and French vanilla for his or her first morning cup of Joe.

Coffee doesn't have to be boring anymore. If you love a coffee lover, make his/her experience of drinking coffee special with a few choice gifts like the ones above.

Five Gifts for the Movie Aficionado:

Movies are great entertainment. Where movies are concerned, there is something for everyone: love, hate, action, foreign language, and horror, to name a few.

For the movie buff, watching a good motion picture is like drinking a fine wine. If you are in love with a movie aficionado, here are some ideas for gifts s/he will love:

- 1. Favorite movies on DVD. We all love to see the latest blockbuster at the Cineplex, but seeing a good movie over and over can get pricey. When the DVD comes out, give your partner the gift of a classic collection. Buy his or her favorite movies complete with bonus DVD's that contain extra footage and director's comments. Now, s/he can watch the movie as many times as desired without the excessive costs of a movie theater each time.
- 2. Gift certificates. Every movie theater offers gift certificates for their movie fans. These gift certificates function like cash so they can be used for snack bar items also. When your movie lover is short of cash for the latest thriller, s/he can use your gift to finance the venture.
- 3. Snack gift basket. A movie is not the same without a snack to enjoy. Give him or her a basket filled with all his/her movie favorites: Jujubes, Mike and Ikes, Snickers, and Goobers. Watching a movie at home will be just like a seat in the theater.
- 4. Home audio system. The best thing about a movie is the sound. It could be the music that makes us sad or the car crash special effects. Either way, the sound is a big part of the movie. Adding a Bose audio system to your home can bring that sound to life just like in a movie theater.

Obviously, this suggestion of a Bose purchase is not on the list for the frugal shopper! Perhaps, you might consider it for that VERY special occasion ... ??

If you can't afford a Bose system, no problem. There are tons of home theater systems available at various electronic and department stores. Shop wisely and you're sure to find one that works nicely with your budget

5. Wall mounted or big screen television. A normal television screen won't do for a movie fan. With a bigger screen, your loved one can see things in the scene that might have been missed before. Stores like Circuit City and Best Buy have sales on their televisions all the time. Surprise the movie lover in your life with a new screen to view his or her movies. This will surely be an unexpected gift!

6. Favorite Movie Memorabilia

Does your movie nut have a favorite era of film? Get him/her some movie memorabilia from that era. It may take a while for you to find (Hint: Look online, using a Google-search); but your loved one will be glad you took the time.

We all have our special interests and nothing delights us more than someone who shares that interest with us. You don't have to be a movie buff to appreciate one. Your movie gift of love is a romantic gesture not soon to be forgotten!

Gifts for the Puzzle Lover

Puzzles have been around for hundreds of years. They tease the brain and give hours of enjoyment.

The puzzle lover is always ready for new puzzle-challenges. Lucky you, there are LOADS of new games and puzzles out there ... and the price is usually quite “right”, too! So, if your partner loves puzzles, here are some ideas for gifts that s/he would love to receive:

1. Puzzle Books

Puzzle books allow him to take his love of puzzles on the morning subway train ride, to the lunchroom, and anywhere else s/he may go. Crossword puzzle books or word search keep the mind occupied during periods of time when there is nothing else to do but wait. The puzzle books can be the size of a notebook or small enough for him/her to slip into his/her back pocket or purse.

2. Keychain Games

With this gift, your loved one can hang his/her favorite game from a ring of keys. Games like Sudoku, tic-tac-toe, and others can be purchased in small electronic versions. Just a “heads up”: If your partner likes to play it all the time, you might be the one who always gets to drive.

3. Traditional Puzzles

We’ve all put together a puzzle as a kid. The most challenging ones were the 500-piece boxes with obscure pictures. You know the ones that made all but the puzzle fan give up?

Some sites offer custom made puzzles complete with a picture of whatever you wish when you send them a photograph. Give your loved one a pleasant surprise when s/he completes the puzzle – have it made from a picture of you!

4. Brainteasers

Remember the games that we used to get out of the bubble gum machine or at the dollar store? They were items like the little black plastic squares with interlocking pieces that contained numbers or parts of a picture. You had to shift them around until the pieces were in the correct order. Your loved one will love the fact that you searched far and wide to find the puzzle games that first interested him/her at a much younger age.

5. Rubik's Cube

This has to be the ultimate puzzle. Along with the cube, there was also an orb and a pyramid that came out on the market. This gift is sure to challenge your loved one for hours.

Puzzles come in all shapes, sizes, and dimensions these days. Sharpen your partner's mind -- and smile -- with the latest puzzle on the market. When s/he needs a break from the mind boggling of the puzzle, be sure you're there to help him/her unwind, too!
